

Here's a link to the EdpunksGuide

What's an Edpunk?

An edupunk is someone who doesn't want to play by the old college rules. Maybe you have interests that don't fit the academic mold. Maybe you're in a remote location. Maybe you have a family, a job, or other responsibilities and you can't take on life as a full-time student. Maybe you love new technology and new ways of learning. Or maybe you're just a rebel!

DIY Learning

There's been a revolution in the way people spread knowledge. Sharing information openly over the Internet makes learning faster, more up-to-date, and more relevant to our immediate needs.

Most people are still being pushed down the assembly line of kindergarten through college without access to alternatives that might be not just cheaper or faster but smarter and better.

DIY Communities

DIY communities help each other get the knowledge and tools they need to solve problems and accomplish goals on their own without being told how to act or being forced to spend a lot of money. That can mean growing your own food, fixing your own car, publishing your own writing or putting on your own rockshow. In the case of DIY education, it means getting the knowledge you need at the time you need it, with enough guidance so you don't get lost, but without unnecessary restrictions.

It means that the resources are in your hands and you're driving the process.